

Hold Funds Notice

When you open a personal or small business deposit account with us, you may be impacted by how we hold funds. Holding funds means that when you deposit cheques, drafts, certified cheques, money orders, orders for payment, coupons, promissory notes, or other bills of exchange (each an Instrument) in-branch, through our mobile app, or ATM, you may not be able to access the full amount of the funds from that deposit immediately.

The reason we hold funds is that a cheque is not the same as cash - it is a promise to pay by one party to another party. If the first party doesn't have sufficient funds in their account at another financial institution, or if the cheque or Instrument is fraudulent, the other financial institution can refuse to pay the item and return it unpaid to us. A hold period allows sufficient time for us to verify that funds will be available to pay the item.

Cheque cashing is essentially a credit decision. If we credit your account right away with the full amount of the cheque or other Instrument, we are granting you credit for that amount until we can verify that the promise to pay can be carried out. If the promise to pay is broken, we will need to recover the funds from you, as we would for any other loan given to you.

As it is a credit decision, how we hold funds is applied differently for each customer. We'll determine your deposit hold period when we open an account for you. Deposit hold periods determine how much of any deposit will be subject to a hold. We will assess your creditworthiness in setting your hold period by considering several factors including your credit history, the length of time you have banked with us, and your existing accounts with us. We will review and may adjust your deposit hold period from time to time.

If your deposit is subject to a hold, the full amount of the deposit will be reflected in your account balance right away. However, your ability to access all funds ("full hold"), or a portion of them ("partial hold"), will be restricted.

We may at any time advise you that we are placing a full or partial hold on a cheque or other Instrument presented by you, whether you have been given a deposit hold period or not. That decision will depend on the following with respect to the cheque or other Instrument:

- the amount and the issuer,
- the institution on which it has been drawn,
- its characteristics,
- your deposit hold limits (if any), and
- the amount of funds already in your account.

When funds are deposited to your account, via Direct Deposit programs where available, no hold is placed on the money deposited because it is credited directly to your account.

The following illustrates how long it may take for you to get access to your funds after you deposit a cheque (maximum hold period):

Deposit Type	In-Person Deposit Holds	Digital or ATM Deposit Holds
Canadian cheque	4 business days ($100 available immediately)	5 days ($100 available day after deposit)
Cheques issued in USD on a Canadian financial institution	5 business days	Not applicable
Cheques drawn on a US financial institution	20 business days	Not applicable
Cheques drawn on an international financial institution	30 business days	Not applicable

Important Notes:

A business day means Monday to Friday unless one of those days is a statutory holiday. We may make the maximum hold period longer if:

- a. we have reasonable grounds to believe there may be illegal or fraudulent activity in relation to the account,
- b. if the date on the cheque is more than 6 months prior to the day you deposit it to your account, or
- c. if a cheque was drawn on a foreign financial institution and payment from the cheque has not been received by us from the foreign financial institution within the initial maximum hold period.

When we give you access to your funds after the hold period, it does not mean that the cheque cannot be returned for another reason. If it is returned, we may collect the amount of the cheque from your account.

If you have any questions about hold periods, call us at 1.866.446.7001 and we'd be happy to help you.

1 The maximum hold period does not apply to a deposit account of a Business Digital Banking member with authorized credit of less than $1 million if we have reasonable grounds to believe that there is a material increased credit risk.

2 These hold periods are estimates and apply where we have credited the funds to your account. We may extend such hold periods if payment for the cheques or other Instruments has not been received by us from the U.S. or foreign financial institution within that initial maximum hold period.
